“ It's been a month and I week since you've gone. I miss you so much Kevin. I don't even go a day without thinking about you. You were the best fiancé that I never deserved. I've dealt with death before but you leaving without saying goodbye like that ... just breaks my heart... Up til now I'm still living in denial. I've never in a million years would think that you're already gone. Your presence is the important part of my life. I miss everything about you. I miss how you cheered me up when something bad happened to me . I miss how we fought over some silly little thing but ended up laughing even more after everything was solved . I miss how you took care of me when I got food poisoning . No one makes me feel safe and comfortable being with like you do. God don't make people like you anymore. God doesn't give us a long time to be with each other but I'm thankful for that time even though we couldn't make it last. I know right know you're in his arm and that you're living in a place with no days and no years , no tears and no pain and that you will stay with God forever. Rest in peace Kevin. I love you!

“ Nobody put more effort into their intricate pranks on me at the pizza shop than Kev. Like when he'd hide in the dough racks in the fridge or under the oven at closing time. I'd walk around looking for him thinking he had uncharacteristically left without saying goodbye when he'd scurry out and get me.

When I got this news it felt just like that. Like he left without saying goodbye and my guard went up waiting for him to get me.

And when he'd get you, he had that laugh that no one else had and that I'll never forget. It was mischievous and it let you know that you'd been gotten, but it was soaked in friendship. It was distinct. You could hear it from outside as you walked in or in the background on the phone with someone else. And you'd wonder how he'd gotten someone and wish you were there to enjoy it.

We'll never have that again and I can't help but break down at the thought of that. But I'll also laugh out loud thinking back on those memories for the rest of my own life and miss you, bud.

“ RIP Kevin.
Always put a smile on my face. Such a fun loving guy. I'm gonna miss you and your corny jokes. Thoughts and prayers go out to friends and family during this tough time.

“ He was so fun to work with and always provided a friendly smile. He made the time spent at work fly with his quick wit and fun nature. His spirit will live on in all of our hearts as we remember him and smile. Best wishes to his family during this time of remembrance.
